

Good Bye, Good Luck, God Bless You!

Father Knickerbocker cheers through his tears while 25,000 departing khaki-clad sons swing down Fifth Avenue in New York's Greatest Military Parade

Vanderbilt, in command of the 22d Engineers. They entrained last night for their training camp at Spartanburg, S. C. (6) The colors of the 71st are given a mighty cheer by the thousands in front of the Library. (7) Major General John F. O'Ryan, commander of the 27th Division, U. S. A., the greater part of which composed yesterday's inspiring parade. Major General O'Ryan rode at the head of his troops over the whole line of march.
